DETAILED ACTION

Status of Claims

1. This action is in response to the Terminal Disclaimer filed on 04 April 2005.
2. Claims 1-6 have been examined.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 1-6 are allowed. See Reasons for Allowance under separate heading.

Reasons For Allowance

4. The following is an Examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

None of the art of record, taken individually or combination, disclose at least the method step or system component of: enabling one of the credit card company and the at least one computer to pay fees due to a plurality of third parties from the credit card purchase based upon the multiple party payment information received by the credit card company from the merchant or retailer. More specifically, the prior art of record fails to disclose a single credit card transaction in which all parties involved, such as a taxing authority, shipping and handling party, licensing organization, etc., each are remitted their portion of the total transaction, automatically, without dividing the sale into a plurality of smaller transactions, each handled individually.

Claims 1 and 5 are distinguished over the closest prior art of Weiss (US 5,866,889 A), which teaches "An integrated financial system that includes a single customer account that permits a customer to perform various financial transactions. The account includes at least banking components and brokerage components. The account is flexible enough to include a variety of other components such as a credit card component, a line of credit component, a secured credit component and a money market component" (abstract). As recited in independent claims 1 and 5, it is clear that the Applicant's invention is distinguished over the Weiss invention in at least the system component and method step of enabling one of the credit card company and the at least one computer to pay fees due to a plurality of third parties from the credit card purchase based upon the multiple party payment information received by the credit card company from the merchant or retailer. Although Weiss does disclose a single account capable of providing a variety of financial transactions, Weiss does not disclose paying a plurality of third parties from a single transaction.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
  - Amory et al. "Authentication of the Origin and Content of Paperless Transactions and Questions of Liability in Continental Law." Amory briefly discloses many parties involved in a transfer transaction.
  - SERIZAWA (JP 61,117,659 A) discloses a credit card payment system.
